WORLD WILL SOON KNOW TURK PLANS

Question Of War In Asia Minor
Spreading Over Into Europe
Soon To Be Decided

(By Associated Press)
Constantinople, Sept. 23.—Within 36 hours the world will probably know whether the Turkish Nationalists have chosen war or peace. The Ankara cabinet meeting at Smyrna is expected hourly to declare that the Kemalists will await the peace conference proposed by the powers or take matters into their own hands by invading Thrace. France is expected to exert renewed pressure to keep the Turks from hostile action which would jeopardize their favorable position.

Lloyd George States Great Britain's Policy In Near East
London, Sept. 23.—Great Britain's policy in the Near East is to establish freedom of the Dardanelles under supervision of the League of Nations, Prime Minister Lloyd George declared in a statement here today. He said every step taken by Great Britain to strengthen military and naval forces in the Dardanelles and Bosphorus is with that idea and to prevent this exceptionally war from spreading into Europe.

212 INDICTMENTS IN HERRIN MURDERS

(By Associated Press)
Marion, Ill., Sept. 23.—A total of 212 indictments voted by the special grand jury investigating the Herrin mine riot in Williamson county last June, were revealed today in the report of the inquiry. The first official report of the investigators arraigned the state and county officials for alleged failure in their duty in neglecting to summon troops in time to prevent the death toll. It states that W. U. Lesler, owner of the mine which was the center of the conflict, "either was woefully innocent of the danger or blindly determined to risk a conflict if profit could be made in attempting to operate the property during the strike." The report arraigned Adjutant General Black for failure to send troops and Sheriff Melvin Thaxton, and the local police for alleged failure to protect life and property. The ransacking of a hardware store to secure firearms just before the attack was the result of a telegram from John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers, declaring the non-union men strikebreakers. Among those indicted were Hugh Willis, district board member of the Illinois mine workers, and Will Davis, secretary of subdistrict No. 18. Willis is charged with murder and assault to commit murder. Davis is charged with murder. The Herrin riot resulted in the deaths of 22 persons.

Robert Fay, former German spy, has been deported after five years' imprisonment in the United States.

RENAKER MURDER TRIALS DECEMBER 11

Mrs. Renaker And Reese Fox
Both Furnish Bond In $5000
For Their Appearance

Winchester, Ky., Sept. 23.—Bail of $5,000 each was fixed in circuit court here Friday by Mrs. Nancy Catherine Renaker and Reese Fox, who, with Scobee Hardman, were named in an indictment returned Thursday, charging conspiracy in the murder of Mrs. Renaker's husband, Leon Renaker, wealthy poultry commission merchant of Winchester. Both furnished bond and their hearing was set for December 11.

Hearing of an application for bail by Hardman was set for Monday before Judge W. R. Shackelford. Hardman was arrested August 20 in connection with the slaying of Kentucky's "turkey king" and was held without bond to the grand jury at his examining trial. Fox also was accused a few days later in connection with the case, but was released on $5,000 bond.

Renaker, whose body was found by Mrs. Renaker, on her return from Cincinnati July 25, left more than $50,000 insurance to his widow. He had been beaten to death with a blunt instrument, which never was found.

Mrs. Renaker's bond was furnished by her uncles, Lee Evans, former county judge, and Curtis Evans, and her attorneys, S. T. Davis and Judge J. M. Benton. Fox was allowed the same bail that was furnished after his examining trial.

Hardman has employed Wallace Muir, of Lexington, J. S. Winn and G. F. Wycoff, of this city. Mrs. Renaker will be defended by Judge J. M. Benton and S. T. Davis, of Winchester.

Card Of Thanks

As the untimely hand of death has visited our home and taken from our midst our beloved companion, Wm. Ledford, thereby leaving a vacant chair that never can be filled, his bereaved wife takes this means of extending her heartfelt and sincere thanks to the numerous friends and neighbors for their numberless acts of kindness bestowed upon the family during his extended illness. Also to the singers and to Mr. Canfield for his convenience of transportation as furnished by him in the funeral procession. Also for the goodly number of floral designs given by friends and relatives.—Mrs. Addie Ledford. 1t

DRASTIC INJUNCTION MADE PERMANENT

Federal Judge Says R. R. Employees Cannot Prevent Operation Of Roads

(By Associated Press)
Chicago, Sept. 23.—Federal Judge James Wilkerson today granted Attorney General Daugherty's petition for a nation wide injunction against the striking railway shopmen. In a lengthy review of the case he said the defendants could not deny knowledge and responsibility for the widespread violence which marked the strike.

The partial settlement of the strike, he held, had not affected the fight of the government to obtain a nationwide injunction.

The court gave attorneys for the defense until Monday morning to study the decision and prepare to argue the text of the injunction order which will be signed. Daugherty today presented the government's draft which is even more drastic than the restraining order now in force. The order will affect 400,000 members of the six crafts belonging to the railway employees' department of the American Federation of Labor.

COX TALKS ON NATIONAL ISSUES

(By Associated Press)

Cleveland, Sept. 23.—Asked what the issue will be this fall, Governor James M. Cox, of Ohio, and late Democratic nominee for president, declared here today in his first address since his return from an extensive tour of Europe that "the people this year will be asked to elect a Congress that will undo the present tariff monstrosity." But he added "we will not lose sight of another great question, the international one, it will be more pertinent for discussion, however, in the great national forum of 1924."

OCT. 12 WILL BE EARL COMBS DAY HERE

Thursday, Oct. 12th, promises to be the biggest day that Richmond has seen in some time.

It will be Earl Combs Day, named in honor of the popular Richmond boy who is a member of the Louisville team in the American Association. The Combs will come here to play a game against a picked Richmond team that day and Combs will be with them and be seen in a uniform for the first time since he played with the Eastern Normal.

As Oct. 12 is Columbus day and a national holiday, anyway it is expected that Mayor O'Neil will declare it a half holiday for everything in Richmond so that all may go out and see the popular local boy play and the big leaguers he is a star among.

The game will be played on the Normal School grounds.

Sam Reid and Clell Tatum, both on their way up the baseball ladder, may be secured to pitch for Richmond against Louisville in the game. Charley and Simp Rogers, George Ginter and a number of other promising players will be given an opportunity to show what they can do against the big fellows. Manager Harris, of Blue Lick, may be asked to lend one or two of his crack Paint Lick players may be used. It will be a fine opportunity for youngsters who have big league aspirations to show what they can do, where it may count something for them.

Became Ill at School; Boy Pneumonia Victim

Stanford, Sept. 23.—Matt Bastin, 16, became suddenly ill while in school at Waynesboro and was found to have a case of pneumonia which resulted in his death.

The second trial of Walter Stamp for the murder of W. Smith Russell has been set for November 27.

GREAT CROWD SEES DEDICATION AT BERA

The dedication of the Union church building brought more people to Berea than any other event of the year, save the possible exception of Berea College Commencement day. This is an event that many people had been looking forward to for years. Two years ago when this magnificent church house existed nowhere except in the minds of those who have since worked so hard to make it a reality, it was hoped that Dr. Robert G. Hutchins, who was then pastor of the church, would be present at this dedication service to preach the sermon of the occasion, but death took him away in November, 1921, and it was very fitting indeed that this honor should fall to his son, William J. Hutchins, President of Berea College.

The speakers of the evening service were ex-President William Goodell Frost, Professor LeVant Dodge, and Dr. A. E. Thompson. Dr. Thompson is a former pastor of Union church and is now a trustee of the College and principal of the Lincoln Institute. Dr. Benson Roberts, former pastor of the Union church, was scheduled to speak at this service but was unable to be present.

President Frost's address at this Sunday night meeting was a striking analysis of the elements of Dr. Frost's power.

Among the number of speeches made at the Monday night meeting was one by Edwin S. Peeson of the founder of the church and Berea College, a superb address by E. F. White, who was a personal friend of John Gregg Fee.

The Union Sunday school rally under the direction of Asher B. Strong, principal of the model school on Scaffold Lane, was an inspiring meeting. Fifteen Sunday schools were represented and each answered to the roll call with a report giving the number of officers and teachers, the average attendance, and the number present at this service. In addition to the reports given by the Sunday schools some schools to entertain with short programs. Blue Lick was handicapped owing to the fact that one of her wagons broke down and a part of the Sunday school was delayed.

After the children's exercises ex-President Frost made a brief address first to the children and then to the parents.

LOCAL MEN BUY BIG PICTURE RIGHTS

Willard A. Sharp, this city, and E. E. Stone, of Pineville, have just completed negotiations with James C. McClellan, of Pendleton, Oregon, for the purchase of "The Pendleton Round-Up," a states right motion picture, for the states of Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee. This picture is the only feature of its kind in this country and it has already been proved a marked success.

Mr. Stone has just returned from Cincinnati and Chicago, where he purchased the necessary advertising and lobby display that a picture of this calibre deserves. They expect to begin filling their dates about October 1st in Knoxville and then to work up thru this state for the winter.

Mr. Sharp left for Cincinnati Friday to sever his business relations with the Flatow, Riley and Co. fruit and commission merchants, preparatory to leaving Richmond.

The Henderson county Presbyterian churches subscribed $35,500 to the fund for Christian education in Kentucky.

Miss Jane Goodloe who has been teaching at Hollins College, Virginia, the past three years sailed last week for an extended stay in Europe.

Mrs. Margaret Boggs left Friday for a visit to B. F. Boggs and family in Bardstown.

CINCINNATI MAN CLAIMS BOOZE CAR

But Sheriff Tells His Son Sent Here to Send His Father and Thorough Identification

Two men came from Cincinnati yesterday and claimed the rum runner's car which was overturned at the intersection of the Lexington and Boonesboro turnpikes late last Sunday afternoon. They said their names were Bernard Goodman and George Sumner and gave their addresses as 350 Hopkins street, Cincinnati. Sheriff Deatherage had learned that the Ohio license on the rear of the big car had been issued to I. Goodman at this address. Bernard Goodman said he was a son of I. Goodman and the car was his father's and had been stolen from him. The sheriff was rather suspicious of the strangers, however, and told the men to go back and get his father and let him come after his own car and prove his ownership and identity. The two young men conferred a short time and then asked the time of the first train to Cincinnati.

Hundreds have inspected the completely equipped bootlegging car at the garage on Second street where it has been kept since it was brought to town. It has been put in good running order and seems ready to fill further orders at any time.

Sheriff Deatherage has been doing some investigating and has about come to the conclusion that this car and the other were returning from a long trip to the south. He believes they were taken south loaded with whisky, which was delivered safely, and the rum runners were on their way home. He found that these two cars stopped at Wilson's store at Foxtown and inquired the shortest way to Cincinnati. They were directed on out to the Boonesboro pike. It is believed they came here from Lancaster and struck the Lexington pike via Goggin's Lane. It develops that they did turn off to the Boonesboro pike and started toward the river. Some distance down the Boonesboro pike they saw ahead a gathering of automobiles and vehicles on the road near Alvin Brandenburg's residence. A number of friends were assembling there preparatory to going to the home of Mr. Keller for a surprise party. Fearing that this gathering might prove to be officers in wait for them, the two cars were turned into a pasture some distance away, and turned around. There in a field was found dumped a great mass of gunny sacks, empty cartons such as used around quart bottles and crumpled paper that had been used apparently as packing around the load of booze which had been taken south. Having divested the car of such evidence which the rum runners thought might incriminate them, they turned tail and hastened back the Boonesboro pike toward the Lexington road. They were seen driving at a terrific speed and almost ran over the buggy of Mrs. Eugene Todd, the sheriff learned. The first car went over as it attempted to turn to the right to go on the Lexington pike toward Clay's Ferry and the next car, whizzing behind it, hardly slackened its speed as it picked up the driver of the wrecked machine and hastened on. It is presumed that the river was crossed at the Clay's Ferry bridge.

A careful search of the machine which was abandoned, showed a road map of Georgia; an Oklahoma newspaper of a few days before the wreck; envelopes with Nashville and Atlanta addresses. Sheriff Deatherage is thoroughly convinced that the caravan was part of the great "underground" system of rum running which is said to be in operation from Canada into the interior states. The bootleggers who operate it are said to have a fleet of cars so cleverly equipped and camouflaged that nothing less than a thorough search would reveal anything incriminating. This car here is regarded as a splendid example of the art which has been employed to convert an ordinary appearing touring car into a veritable "warehouse" for wet goods.

EASTERN HARD AT WORK IN CAMP

Coach G. N. Hembree is getting good results from the men out for positions on the Eastern Normal eleven in the training camp at Boonesboro this week. Although not a fourth of the squad which will be here for the opening practice is at Boonesboro, things are going extremely well. On this training trip much attention is being paid to the backfield. Several new players were expected in camp. Edgar Harris, Stephenson and Tamm are showing up especially well in the backfield. Covington bids fair for a backfield or end position. Carr is working at center while Powell is showing up well at tackle. The boys are getting some very valuable work out of the tackling dummy. They are also being educated in the art of blocking which they have mastered to some extent. The first scrimmage was held Friday which will be followed by a little heavier workout Saturday. A wealth of material is expected in when school begins Monday. Then the real work will begin in preparation for the Kentucky Wesleyan game at Winchester September 30. The men at Boonesboro are expected to return here Sunday.

CLAIMS OLDEST MULE IN STATE

Paris, Ky., Sept. 21.—"Jack" the property of W. J. Hunter, Route No. 1, Ewing, Ky., has been nominated by his owner for the grand sweepstakes champion as the oldest mule in the United States.

Mr. Hunter states he has owned "Jack" for 25 years. He purchased the venerable animal from Robert Overby, of Robertson county, father-in-law of the present owner. Mr. Overby claims to have paid taxes on Jack as far back as 1878.

A number of theories have been advanced concerning the secret of the mule's success in dodging the tanyard. Those persons familiar with the case attribute much of his success in this line of endeavor to the good condition of his teeth, which enables him to Fletcherize his food.

Mr. Hunter has long since relieved "Jack" of the arduous duties of the day lot of the younger generations of mules and in recognition of his many years of service has been retired on "full pay."

U. S. Reports Condition Of the Tobacco Crop

Washington, Sept. 23.—Reports received by the Department of Agriculture on the tobacco crop conditions since Sept. 1 are summarized in an announcement today as follows:

"The harvesting of tobacco advanced in New England. It has suffered much from dry weather and hail in Maryland and Virginia. The weather has been somewhat unfavorable for curing, although Virginia is reported to have one of the best crops ever grown. The quality is said to be good in the old belt or North Carolina and poor in the new belt. It is reported to be fair in Tennessee and Kentucky.

GOVERNOR'S LETTER READ BY BINGHAM

Founder Of Burley Co-operative
Helping In Similar Organization In Dark District

Hopkinsville, Ky., Sept. 21.—Judge R. W. Bingham, of Louisville, beginning a week's campaign in Western Kentucky here Monday afternoon in the interest of the Dark Tobacco Growers' Association, created much enthusiasm by reading the following letter from Governor Morrow:

"I unhesitatingly endorse the movement now under way in Western Kentucky looking to the formation of a co-operative association of dark tobacco growers modeled on the plan of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association. From every section of the blue grass I have heard nothing but good reports from the members of the burley association and it is freely predicted by men of the highest business ability that the burley association will continue to grow in usefulness and in service to those who grow and sell the crop.

"Every standpoint it applies to the co-operative marketing one of the chief crops will solve one of the state's chief problems, and bring a very great measure of good to all concerned.

"It is my judgment that the co-operative plan is no longer a theory; it has demonstrated itself by its work. For this and for many other reasons I am glad to add my indorsement to the movement looking to the organization of the dark tobacco growers of Kentucky into a co-operative association."

Former Attorney General Jas. Breathitt introduced Judge Bingham, who advised growers to study the contracts carefully before they pledged their growers to study the contracts carefully before they pledged their accords, emphasized the fact that the contracts run for five years and that members must adhere rigidly to the procedure outlined. Heretofore the buyer fixed the price for the tobacco and now it is the farmer's own fault if he does not obtain his own price. He cited the case of the burley growers, who in 1921 received as low as a quarter cent a pound for the products of long months of toil, but who this year, under co-operative marketing, have already received twice as much as they did for their entire crop last year.

A rally at Glasgow Wednesday addressed by Congressman Barkley, was attended by 1000 growers.

A 90 per cent sign-up is predicted for Trigg County, and more than 35 per cent already has been pledged in Lyon.

MAN READS BIBLE 46 TIMES

Surpassed Only by the Late Evangelist Dwight L. Moody, Who Has Record of 50 Times.

Mount Carmel, Ill.—Capt. W. P. Haberton of this city is believed to have read the Bible through more times than any person since the evangelist Dwight L. Moody. He has read it through forty-six times, and has now more than half completed his forty-seventh reading. Nearly half a century ago he learned that by reading three chapters on each week day and five on each Sunday the reader just gets through in a year. He adopted the plan and has followed it every year since. Mr. Moody is said to have read his Bible through fifty times.

COBB AND SISLER HAVE GREAT RACE

(By Associated Press)

Chicago, Sept. 23—Tyrus Raymond Cobb, batting champion of the American League for 12 years out of 15 years, may realize his ambition to be crowned with that coveted honor this season.

The Detroit veteran, in his flight to overtake George Sisler, of the Browns, today is just 17 points behind the St. Louis star, but with Sisler out of the game, Cobb has a chance to pass him, provided he averages two hits or more for the remaining games of the season and Sisler fails to deliver in the role of a pinch hitter.

Sisler's average including the games of Wednesday is .418, compared with a mark of .424 a week ago. Cobb is collecting hits to the tune of .391. But Sisler's heart and soul is in baseball and it is almost an impossibility to keep him out of the game, despite physicians' orders. He insists upon getting into his uniform, even although he does not get into the line up, so that he may be ready to take a crack at the ball when called as a pinch hitter. His absence from the game may help the "Georgia Peach" in his quest for the batting honors.

Cobb led the American League every year from 1907, with the exception of in 1916 when Tris Speaker of the Indians took the honors and in 1920 when Sisler was crowned king, and last season when Harry Heilmann of the Tigers crowded Cobb out of first place.

Other leading batters for 100 games or more: Speaker, Cleveland, .376; Heilmann, Detroit, .367; Tobin, St. Louis, .331; Galloway, Philadelphia, .330; Pipp, New York, .329; Williams, St. Louis, .328; Ed Miller, Philadelphia, .328; Bessler, Detroit, .328; Severoid, St. Louis, .325; Veach, Detroit, .324; Schang, New York, .324; Meusel, New York, .324.

Rogers Hornsby, the St. Louis star, who for the past two years has carried off premier batting honors of the National league, has launched a final drive to boost his 1922 average above the coveted 400 mark. The St. Louis favorite is hitting .399. Tierney continues to be the runner-up with an average of .372. Miller, of the Cubs, is in third place with an average of .357.

Other leading batters for 100 or more games: Grimes, Chicago, .351; Bigbee, Pittsburgh, .348; Hollocher, Chicago, .344; Harper, Cincinnati, .340; Daubert, Cincinnati, .339; Carey, Pittsburgh, .334; Young, New York, .334; Waker, Philadelphia, .333; Meusel, New York, .330.

The American Association averages show Earl Coughs batting .341.

Studebaker SPECIAL SIX TOURING

A NEW LOW PRICE

WHEREVER you look, you will find protection against hard wear built into the Studebaker Special-Six and this quality of construction is just as exacting down under the surface as it is where you can see every detail.

The skillful workmanship and the fine materials of these hidden values are largely responsible for its long-lived dependable service.

Two important elements that make the Special-Six notable for fine performance and comparative freedom from repair, are the four-bearing crankshaft and the seven-inch frame with its five cross-members and sub-frame supporting the motor and the separate transmission.

The new price, $1275, is the lowest for which the Special-Six Touring Car ever sold—and the quality is better than ever.

Price does not always determine value, but in the case of Studebaker it establishes the finest values in the market. The name Studebaker on your car insures satisfaction.

Come in or phone and let us give you a demonstration in the Special-Six. Drive it yourself. A ride will help you make up your mind. In public confidence and respect, the name Studebaker stands higher than ever.

Writes Mrs. Hardee Regarding Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Los Angeles, Calif.—"I must tell you that I am a true friend to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken it off and on for twenty years and it has helped me change from a delicate girl to a stout, healthy woman. When I was married I was sick all the time until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's vegetable Compound. I was in bed much of my time with pains and had to have the doctor every month. One day I found a little book in my yard in Guthrie, Oklahoma, and I read it through and got the medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and took eight bottles and used the Sensitive Wash. I at once began to get stronger. I have got many women to take it just by telling them what it has done for me. I have a young sister whom it has helped in the same way it helped me. I want you to know that I am a 'friend indeed,' for you were a 'friend in need.'"

COLUMNS DECAY BUT BEAUTY OF POSTPILE GROWS

Phenomenon of Far West is Seldom Visited.

INTERESTS FOREIGN SCIENCE

This Marvel, Which Thus Far Has Attracted So Little Interest, Is but Few Hundred Miles From Los Angeles—Located in the Heart of Hearts of the Stupendous Sierra Nevada—Likely to Hold Out for Another Thousand Centuries.

The Devil's Postpile, natural wonder and national monument, is crumbling. Mysteriously wrought in the cosmic crucible, possibly when our planet's foundations were laid, it gradually is succumbing to the onslaughts of elemental forces. But let not this startling statement occasion immediate alarm or regret, for here's a comforting paradox: The basaltic marvel of the California wilds improves as its destruction progresses! And as it likely will hold out for another thousand centuries there remains time to go and look it over.

Disintegrating agencies sunder the masonry of the remarkable structure, and frost, earthquake, tempest and thunderbolt rend, topple and shatter its adamantine supports, but always the newly-exposed columns stand forth stronger and more perfect of form, more brilliant in their pristine glory. So huge is the mass, says John L. Von Blon in Dearborn Independent, that it must endure for ages before denotification shall be complete. Fortunately, it affects only the outermost segments, hence a year discloses but slight change.

Devil's Postpile.
Do you know where the Devil's Postpile is? Have you ever heard of it? Though set apart by the President a decade ago, authoritatively recognized as the best example extant of its peculiar type of columnar basalt, and readily accessible in summer, it remains virtually unseen and unknown. Not more than one out of every 10,000 Americans has beheld it or could tell its location, while foreign governments and institutions send their scientists to study the splendid tower of long, dark, glistening prisms in all its fascinating aspects. This phenomenon, which thus far has attracted so little interest among our own people is but a few hundred miles from Los Angeles, an easy drive of a day or so northward along the eastern base of continental America's loftiest mountains—a trip of varied picturesqueness and rare charm. From San Francisco the distance is about the same via the Yosemite valley—also a route of grandeur. The nearest highway is the transcontinental National Roosevelt Midland trail, almost direct from Montauk Point, Long Island, to the "post pile" and the Golden state's major cities. Two or three hours by trail, afoot or in the saddle, will take you from a resort called Mammoth to the weird, enchanted precincts of his satanic majesty's reputed post-setting or pile-driving operations. The spectacle is astonishing and inspires awe.

In the heart of hearts of the stupendous Sierra Nevada, surrounded by scores of whiterobed peaks two and a half miles in the sky, residual glaciers, gorgeous lakes, dreamy meadows, boiling springs, and ice-chilled, dashing brooks, the Devil's Postpile occupies the center of a region of magnificent scenery, more beautiful than the imagination can conceive or mere words describe. It seems a grim sentinel holding watch over the middle fork of the San Joaquin river, which noisily rushes by within a hundred yards. The curiously attractive and impressive prodigy is set at an elevation of 7,500 feet above sea level and is itself a pygmy as compared with the titanic heights all about. Nevertheless, even a prosaic visitor would give heed to naught else the first day or two. The one object enthralled.

Formation of the Wonder.
The "pile" is a mile long, half as wide, and 400 feet high. The odd formation, whence its appellation is derived, is not everywhere in evidence, cropping out only in certain places. The most striking columns constitute more than 1,000 feet of its western face. They rise more than 100 feet above the talus—a vast heap of broken "posts" accumulated through the never-ceasing battering of the cliff by nature's processes. Ultimately all will be leveled in this agglomeration. How far downward they extend man knoweth not; it may be that they go far beyond the heat-radiating center of the ball comprising our tiny share of the universe, but probably they pinch out close to the surface. The geological experts gladly would pay a liberal admittance fee for a peep under.

The columns in this amazing bluff are arranged in rows as regularly as the pipes of a cathedral organ. Almost perfect prisms, they are fitted together like cells in a honeycomb, each placed with the nicest care of true artisanship, and really look as if carved by human hands. The ends above were polished to a gloss by grinding glacial motion, and may be compared with a parqueting floor. The mosaic effect is startling.

Edgar T. Higgins is in Lancaster for a week-end visit to friends.

These columns range from 14 inches to more than three feet in diameter. Most of them are pentagonal, whereas elsewhere, as in the Giants' Causeway, the general shape is hexagonal. The Devil's Postpile affords strange deviation in this respect, some of its immense columns being eight-sided, many seven-sided, and the remainder hexagons. In one extensive section they are straight as sawed timbers and perpendicular. In another they lean and are gracefully curved en masse and the individual prisms twisted and fluted in the making or the cooling as sticks of pliable candy might be shaped. At one point they have the wavy appearance of flowing water. At the southern upper end they project almost horizontally and resemble gigantic railroad ties or evenly corded wood on a hillside. All the columns sparkle like precious stones in the glare of the mountain sun and the sight is bewildering. They are black in the main, but colorful withal, some in varying shades of green, blue and gray, a few white as alabaster.

For many years the handsomest of all the columns, tall and symmetrically tapered, was separated from the body and stood upright and alone, a proud, stalwart symbol of independence, but it is there no more. During my last visit to the postpile it was struck by lightning and fell with a reverberating crash, seared from end to end. Happily, it was broken into few sections.

Center of Electrical Storms.
It would be difficult to find a locality where more sudden and violent electrical storms come booming up. At midday, while the sun shone brightly, a small cumulo-nimbus cloud floated over the range from the west and in less than a few minutes three blue-white streaks darted earthward, and each shattered a tree. The fourth and final bolt, with a peal that made the mountains themselves tremble, took the column. No rain-drops pattered, scarcely a shadow appeared on the grand landscape. The basaltic formation, which has the metallic ring of iron and somewhat its hardness, may tend to draw electricity. At that altitude, eternally shut in by tremendous granite ramparts, the summer lightning season is brief, the winter long and rigorous.

During the warm months the region is fragrant paradise of bloom and bird-song, a melody of sweetest melody. The whole is a forest of pine, tamarack, fir and other sturdy trees, which cover even the postpile where the basalt is not actually bare. Wild flowers carpet the meadows and shaded places and sway breast high in the balmy air—thousands upon thousands of kinds, many of which grow here only. Few are more interesting than the squaw's carpet or mahala mat, a rich evergreen trailer that literally covers the ground with its foliage and feathery clusters of violet blossoms and later bears odd scarlet fruit. The botanist who does not go to the high Sierras misses more than he ever can realize.

At the very upper edge of the crumbling cliff, where a "cornice" has formed, their roots fastened in the columnar jointing, a number of gnarled, torn, dwarfed cedars are hanging by dear life, even as dying humans cling to hope, the while their precarious support is crumbling away. This carries with it sufficient soil and pumice to afford a foothold in the talus below for lustrous quaking aspens, which spring up rapidly and shine as the breezes stir their leaves. A meadowsweet locally known as "postpile tea" and used by knowing mountaineers to make a palatable, refreshing beverage, also thrives amid the wreckage of the scintillant pillars. Above, where moisture comes from the lines of cleavage, delicate rock ferns and dainty mosses give a touch of softness to relieve the harsh glisters of unyielding surfaces.

Where Trails Meet.

The Devil's Postpile is at the junction of important trails leading afar in various directions. Close by, the government has a log cabin that sometimes shelters storm-bound tourists. At times it is occupied by trappers, who bring out thousands of dollars' worth of furs. Big game and wild life abound.

Down stream two miles, and a part of the national monument, is Rainbow Fall, a gem unique and worthy of its name in that it literally is the birthplace of rainbows. The San Joaquin flings itself like a delicate curtain of lace and silver more than 100 feet over a ledge of black basalt—a continuation of the postpile, though without the columns—into an abyssal box canyon. When the sun's rays reach into the fairy box, rainbows arch the mists that flood the chasm—rainbows so clear that color photographs register their distinctness. The setting of this fall, in the bosom of the virgin forest and between exalted heights, is a masterpiece of nature, exquisite, sublime. There is not another elsewhere to match it. The picture lives in memory without fading as time rubs across it.

The Danville Messenger had an item which will be of interest to friends of the family here. Mrs. Burton is a sister of Mrs. L. N. Whittaker, of Richmond. Both she and her husband have many friends here who will be interested in the following from the Messenger: Mr. Fred Burton, widely known dairyman, living on the Walter place, two miles from Danville on the Stanford pike, has purchased a farm at Amelia, Ohio, twenty miles from Cincinnati, on an interurban electric car line, and will sell out at auction his entire dairy herd of twenty choice cows and other personal property on Thursday, September 28, and move with his family to Ohio. His son, Mr. Wm. Morris Burton, who is engaged in the dairy business with his father, will also go to Ohio. Their legion of friends in this community will deeply regret to see this splendid family leave Danville.
